Raising Questions and Concerns

Our Code

Doing our work with integrity is what has set us apart, and anyone who works on our behalf must demonstrate the same commitment we've made to high ethical standards.

Our "partners" include our suppliers, data providers, vendors, service providers, agents, distributors, business partners, consultants, contractors, licensees and members of the Dun & Bradstreet Worldwide Network. We consider each partner to be an extension of Dun & Bradstreet and expect them to conduct business honestly and with integrity. We also expect our partners to choose subcontractors that share our Values and our commitment to conduct business legally, ethically and in accordance with all contractual obligations.

As our partner, you have a responsibility to understand and uphold this Code and to know and abide by all applicable local, state, federal and international laws, regulations, rules, ordinances and industry standards of the countries in which you operate.

If you become aware of a possible violation of this Code or any applicable law or policy in connection with the services you provide for Dun & Bradstreet, whether within your organization or elsewhere, you have a duty to promptly report it. Failure to comply with the Code can have severe consequences for both Dun & Bradstreet and for you. In addition to damaging Dun & Bradstreet's brand and reputation, conduct that violates the Code may also violate the law and result in civil suits and/or criminal prosecution.

Dun & Bradstreet will take appropriate remedial actions for violations of the Code, applicable policies or contracts, up to and including termination of the business relationship and recovery of damages, as warranted by the relevant facts and circumstances.

Our Commitment to People

We Put People First

Dun & Bradstreet is committed to a work environment that fosters respect for all people and reflects the diversity of the communities in which we operate. We expect our partners to share this commitment and to promote behavior that is free of unlawful discrimination and harassment, abusive conduct and bullying. We also expect that you will recognize and respect an employee's right to form, join (or not join) workers' organizations of their choosing and to enter into collective bargaining, as permitted by law.

Respect for Health and Safety

We work to maintain a safe, healthy and productive work environment, and we look to our business partners to do the same. Follow safe working procedures and comply with all applicable laws and regulations of the countries where you operate. Encourage employees to work safely and to immediately report any unsafe condition.

Respect for Human Rights

We expect partners throughout our global supply chain to support Human Rights and encourage partners to adopt standards consistent with the principles established under the United Nations Declaration of Human Rights. Compensate your employees in accordance with all applicable laws including those that relate to minimum wage and overtime hours. Do not employ underage children or forced labor or allow any form of physical punishment or abuse, and take steps to ensure that slavery and human trafficking are not taking place within your organization or organizations with which you work.

Respect for the Environment

We also expect our partners to follow applicable laws, policies, permits and regulations as they relate to protecting the environment and conserving energy and natural resources. Join us in working to reduce the environmental impact of our operations wherever you do business.

Our Commitment to Our Company and Our Shareholders

Handling Conflicts of Interest

Business decisions about Dun & Bradstreet should always be made in our company's best interests. As our partner, we expect you to recognize situations that can present a conflict, avoid even the appearance of bias and, if you become aware of a potential conflict, to disclose it immediately. Should you have any questions about whether something may be a conflict of interest, raise the issue right away with your internal resources or any Dun & Bradstreet resource.

Complying with Our Gifts and Entertainment Policies

The exchange of gifts and entertainment is also an area where conflicts of interest and improper conduct can arise. Ensure that anything you give or receive complies with the law and does not compromise—or even appear to compromise—your ability or the ability of our employees to make fair and unbiased decisions on behalf of Dun & Bradstreet. Do not provide any unreasonable or substantial gifts or entertainment to anyone in the context of your relationship with Dun & Bradstreet.

Speaking on Behalf of Dun & Bradstreet

We want to ensure that accurate information about our company is conveyed to the media, the public, regulatory authorities and others, so we have designated key individuals to serve as our official company spokespersons. Please do not make any statements or speak to reporters on Dun & Bradstreet's behalf.

Social Networking

Engage in social media in a way that is lawful and ethical. Protect confidential business information about our company, our employees, our customers and any other companies with which we work. If you post any content that relates to Dun & Bradstreet or your work with our company, include a disclaimer indicating that the views expressed do not represent those of our company.

Protecting Dun & Bradstreet Assets

Respect our assets, protect them from misuse, manipulation, damage, loss, theft or, in the case of information, exposure to unauthorized parties. We also count on you to preserve our reputation and our highly respected brand.

Physical and Electronic Assets

Our physical and electronic assets are company property and provided for business use. Do not use them for personal benefit or outside work, and do not use them in an unlawful or unauthorized manner.

Confidential Information

Never share confidential information with anyone who is not authorized to view or use it as part of their job. Remember, your obligation to protect our company's information continues even if our business relationship with your organization ends.

Intellectual Property

Respect our trademarks, copyrights, patents and other assets (including internal Dun & Bradstreet publications and software programs developed for or by our company). This intellectual property belongs to Dun & Bradstreet and must be protected and managed appropriately, in the manner prescribed by your contract or non-disclosure agreement.

Data Privacy

Comply with all applicable local, state, federal and international data privacy laws, regulations, rules and ordinances regardless of what services you provide to us. You must also comply with all applicable information security laws, regulations and industry standards.

Maintaining Financial Integrity

We expect our partners to maintain accurate and complete books and records and to ensure all financial information shared with Dun & Bradstreet will likewise be accurate and complete. All records prepared for or in any way relating to Dun & Bradstreet, including financial and operational results, must: accurately reflect all associated transactions, payments and events; be filed in a timely fashion; and comply with all applicable laws as well as any internal controls and procedures.

Complying with Insider Trading Laws

In general, it is illegal for any person with material, non-public (“inside”) information about Dun & Bradstreet or any company to buy or sell securities (stocks, options, etc.) of that company. Providing material, non-public information to someone else so that they may trade (called “tipping”) is also a violation of both this Partner Code and U.S. securities laws, and it carries the same consequences—even if the tipping occurs inadvertently or if you did not trade in that security yourself.

Our Commitment to Conducting Business Fairly and Honestly

Anti-Corruption

Comply with all applicable anti-corruption laws and regulations in the country (or countries) in which you operate. Never offer, authorize, give, promise, accept or offer to accept, anything of value in exchange for an improper advantage. This includes facilitation payments, which are smaller payments made for the facilitation of routine clerical or administrative services. Gift-giving and entertainment must be handled very carefully and in compliance with all applicable laws, regulations and policies. Make sure that books and records accurately reflect the nature of all transactions, and seek clarification any time you have any questions.

Global Trade

Dun & Bradstreet complies with all U.S. and international trade laws and regulations that apply to our business and expects our partners to do the same. Before exporting products or services, be sure to check the applicable regulations that may apply to either the location of delivery or to the recipient. You may be required to obtain a specific license or permit.

Anti-Money Laundering and Know Your Customer Obligations

We abide by all laws designed to deter criminal enterprise, prevent terrorism and protect the national security of the companies where we do business. Exercise good judgment when dealing with customers or other business partners to prevent inadvertent use of Dun & Bradstreet’s business activities for money laundering or terrorist financing.

Fair Competition/Antitrust

We compete fairly and expect our partners to share our unwavering commitment to conducting business and winning with integrity. Comply with all antitrust and global competition laws wherever you operate, and never enter into any agreement that unlawfully restricts competition.

Compliance with Government Contracts

In many cases, our partners are assisting us with fulfilling government contracts. Accordingly, and wherever applicable, we recognize that the requirements related to government contracts are generally stricter than those governing our commercial contracts. It's important that you recognize that, too, and comply with all contractual terms and obligations. Remember, your contractual obligations also apply to the vendors and subcontractors who fulfill services or perform work on our government contracts.

Fair and Ethical Sales Practices

We always conduct ourselves with the highest standards of integrity and business ethics and expect no less from our partners. Always: act with integrity;; and never deceive, defraud or misrepresent the facts.
