Introducing Dun & Bradstreet's ESG Intelligence Solution

Corporate supply chains are bigger and more widespread than ever. With open markets enabling materials and production to be sourced across the globe, companies now rely on thousands of third parties to help them generate their bottom line. Doing business with a large portfolio of third parties comes with new levels of emerging risks, many of which are increasingly difficult to understand and gain visibility into.

Environmental, social and governance (ESG) risks are amongst those that have become difficult to pinpoint — and more prevalent now than ever. Inconsistencies of data and lack of standardization have made proactively harnessing ESG insights to mitigate risk and reap competitive benefits a challenge.

Procurement and compliance professionals are under pressure to implement ESG criteria into their third-party assessment policies, and due diligence process to meet regulatory requirements and minimize risk.

D&B ESG Intelligence capability, delivers data and analytics built from the Dun & Bradstreet Data Cloud and established sustainability standards to help companies quantify and assess the impact of their business partners' sustainability rankings to their companies' performance. This true and trusted source of ESG data enables compliance and procurement teams to generate insights that help strengthen their ESG goals, policies, and streamline ESG assessment processes.

The supply chain ESG data challenge

LACK OF ESG DATA QUALITY AND CREDIBILITY

Lack of uniform and regulated ESG reporting standards presents a number of data challenges related to accuracy, timeliness, completeness, consistency, and more.
